Maine Aviation Aircraft Charter (MAAC) is pleased to announce the addition of a light jet, based in Fort Lauderdale, Florida (FLL), to its charter fleet of executive jet aircraft.

The 1986 Citation SII, tail # N260BS, is an eight-place aircraft with a forward two-seat divan across from the galley, and six individual seats. The luxurious aircraft was recently refurbished and features a flat-screen display with Airshow 200 and a DVD/CD entertainment system.

The FLL-based Citation complements MAAC's current fleet of executive aircraft based across the Northeast – including Hawker 800s, Hawker 700s, Citation Vs and Citation SIIIs – and expands the company's business opportunities into the Florida marketplace.

"We're excited about this opportunity to expand our marketing reach and our customer base," said Nelson Massey, Director of Operations. "Having a jet positioned in the Southeast gives us additional dispatch flexibility, which benefits our clients. This also allows us to be more responsive to last-minute trips and one-ways when they arise."

Maine Aviation is a full-service aviation company based in Portland, Maine, with charter aircraft based across the Northeast and in Florida. Maine Aviation has been in business since 1959 and is the oldest Cessna dealer east of the Mississippi River.
